University Policy Regarding Comprehensive Examinations
(Amended to reflect STRS organizational structure)

After fulfilling the language and course requirements in the major subject, a student must pass a written comprehensive examination in the major subject before applying for admission to candidacy for a doctoral degree.

Students must register for comprehensive examinations and have their credentials reviewed by the Academic Area Director and in the office of the dean of the school at the beginning of the semester. Dates of these examinations are listed in the academic calendar. [NOTE: STRS approved dates does not necessarily follow the Academic Calendar – see the approved exam dates for the Academic Year on the STRS website.]

Directions for preparing for the comprehensive examination may be obtained from the Adviser and Academic Area Director. A comprehensive examination will not be administered unless the form has been signed by all of the appropriate individuals. If the ordinary dates for comprehensive examinations are respected, the petition for the comprehensive examination is approved by the dean.

The comprehensive examination is marked Pass or Fail. A student may retake the entire examination or the failed portion once, according to school policy. A student who incurs two failures in the comprehensive examination in the major subject may not be considered for admission to candidacy for the doctoral degree. A second failure is noted on the student’s permanent record.

If more than five years elapse between the satisfactory completion of the written comprehensive examination in the major field and the final oral examination, a doctoral candidate may be required to take another written comprehensive examination. Additional examination requirements or a shorter time limit may be specified by individual departments or schools.

School of Theology and Religious Studies Policy Regarding Comprehensive Examinations

Approved Requests for Comprehensive Exams must be on file with the Exam Coordinator at least one month prior to the requested test date window.

Confirmation of the approved test dates will be communicated to students at the end of each month via email.

Students who have not registered for comprehensive exams (through Cardinal Station) in the semester in which they intend to take the exam will not be permitted to sit for the exam as requested.
